THE AMERICAN'S CREED.

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people, whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect Union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

FIVE SUNDAYS.

THE world will experience a five-Sunday February this year for the first time in 40 years, and for the last time during the coming 28 years, unless the calendar in vogue at the present time should be modified.

If 1900 had been a leap year the five-Sunday February would have happened in 1908, but the one day that dropped out then put the five-Sunday February off for 12 years.

Since 1800 there was a five-Sunday February in 1824, in 1852, in 1880, in 1920, and the next one will be in 1948. In other words, if the old world didn't slip a cog three centesimal years out of every four there would be five Sundays in February every 28 years.

THE DISSATISFIED FARMER.

JAMES I. BLAKSLEE, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, is so far from being a shrinking violet that he is not beyond engineering a sensation if it promised to give him national prominence in a campaign year. Nevertheless there seems to be something more than personal exploitation in this report of his that the farmers of the nation are dissatisfied with their lot to such an extent that their state of mind is apt to have a serious effect upon the production of food and farm staples.

The really amazing thing about the conclusion drawn from the answers to the questionnaire sent out by the post-office department is that the farmers feel that the city dwellers are better off. Twenty years ago it probably was true that the average city family enjoyed more comforts than the average farm family and did not have to work so hard for what it had, but unless all the evidence is deceptive the advantage is the other way around these days.

Today the farmers of Iowa, for instance, buy more automobiles per thousand population than the people of the industrial state of Pennsylvania. They have schools for their children which are in every way as good as those the city people can boast of and their children are hauled to the school house door each morning in big wagons provided for the purpose, and of course hauled back. There is as much labor saving machinery in the farm house as there is in the machinery shed at the barn. The telephone has wiped out the loneliness which was once the greatest drawback to farm existence and the rural delivery with its parcels post adjunct does its part to bring the farm family into touch with the world. This has gone to the point where on a Saturday afternoon the visitor to a typical Ohio city watching the people stream along the streets finds it impossible to tell who of the crowds come from the farms and who come from the factories. There are states, and parts of states, of course of which these things may not be said, but it is true of such a large portion of the country, north, south, east and west, that it taxes the imagination to conceive of a condition such as that which Mr. Blakslee declares exists.

If it does exist we shall have to fall back upon President Wilson's famous explanation for the panic of 1913-14 and declare it is largely psychological. The farmer is so close to the great world today that he no longer is as class conscious as he used to be. The sturdy yeoman who was a staunch conservative at bottom and kept on voting for Andy Jackson and Abe Lincoln, depending upon the kind of politics he inherited at birth, no longer exists, or at least he no longer exists in numbers large enough to color the thought of the farm communities. There they now hear about, and are influenced by, the ebb and flow of opinion in the country as a whole, and it may be that the unrest which surged through the industrial centers last year is just now making itself felt in the rural sections.

But whatever the cause of the condition which the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General reports there will be no need for pessimism until after last spring is felt in the air and the urge to work the soil gets a chance to work upon the husbandman. It is perhaps natural enough at a time like the present for the farmer to feel dissatisfied when he has little work to do and a lot of time to attend the debating society at the nearest cross roads. If he holds out and refuses to put in crops when nature calls him every time he pokes his head out of the door he will be a real problem. Then, if that ever happens, the country will have to get his womenfolk to take him in hand. They'll take the bolshevism out of him in jig time.

ROOSEVELT DAY.

AT the annual meeting of the American Forestry association a resolution was adopted calling on the schools, women's organizations and public bodies generally in the United States to make January 6, the day that Theodore Roosevelt died, "Roosevelt Day" and to observe it with exercises appropriate to the policy of forest conservation for which T. R. issued the first clarion call in this country.

It was back in 1904 that the first conference of American governors was held in the White House. At this meeting President Roosevelt said:

"Every step of the progress of mankind is marked by the discovery and use of natural resources previously unused. Without such progressive knowledge and utilization of natural resources population could not grow, new industries multiply, nor the hidden wealth of the earth be developed for the benefit of mankind. We want to take action that will prevent the advent of a woodless age and defer as long as possible the advent of an ironless age."

Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry association, declares that because of the drain of war this statement is ten times more important today than when the late president expressed it. "Our forests are like a bank," is the way Pack puts it, "for if we expect to draw out we must make deposits. Wood is the backbone of industry, and with our forests replenishing themselves by growth at only one-third the rate they are being used or destroyed by fire every year, the finish is in sight."

There is one thing all of the experts who are advancing remedies for the transportation troubles of the country can agree upon. They all say that the railroads will have to have higher rates. If they could agree on one or two other points there might be some hope of getting a workable railroad act. But they can't. Outside of the rate question there are as many plans as there are experts.

Hope of treaty ratification by the unofficial compromise route was killed again yesterday, but it will surprise no one to see it revived again early next week. If the negotiations looking to ratification with reservations ever do break off definitely, the matter is certain to come up in the open senate in some form, and then a lot of senators who have been trying to keep the country from finding out just where they stand will have to go on record. If the matter fails of settlement some time before the national conventions are held we all shall have to go on record next November, and the man who says he can tell what the result would be of a show down of that proportion, simply does not know anything about American politics.

One of the things that seems to be troubling the farmers, according to the information given to a senate committee by postoffice department officials, is the big slice that is taken by middlemen. When the farmer compares what the consumer pays with what he gets he gets hot in the collar apparently. That does not paint a very flattering picture of the American farmer, but it may be a pretty accurate one. But the consumer has been angry over the rake off of the middleman for years, and it is pretty plain that there never will be a satisfactory solution of the cost of living problem in this country until the middleman is put under control.

Comparatively speaking there are not many people in this country in sympathy with soviet Russia, but public opinion probably will sustain Martens, the so called Russian ambassador, in his refusal to tell a senate committee just how couriers coming to him from Russia get through the nations that surround Russia. The senate will do all that it is expected to do if it makes a good job of investigating soviet conditions in this country and let Europe alone.

out of the sophomores, 25 to 2, Thursday evening. The Freshies passed the sophomores and their shooting was A. No. 1. The freshmen team was E. Quenson, Kerna, Conway, Hawking and H. Quenson. The sophomore team, Reese, Clelland, Malcolm, Freeland and Martin.

Glenville Normal Wins.
The Glenville Normal basketball team defeated the local high school team here Thursday night by the count of 22 to 11. The locals played their worst game this season on the local floor. All luck was against them. They could get the ball up to the basket, but nine out of ten times it would roll off. For Glenville Normal started getting 9 field goals. A large crowd saw the game. Lineup and summary:

Glenville Normal	Forward	Gallien
Wilfong	Forward
Ganer	Center	Kerr
Reed	Guard	Downs
McGinnis	Guard	Clelland
Substitutes:	Wilcox for Kerr, Sweeney for Gallien.

Field goals: Gardman 9, Wilfong 2, Ganer 2, Reed 1, McGinnis 2, Donaldson 1, Gallien 1, Kerr 2, Poul goals Hardman 6 in 3, Donaldson 0 in 2, Gallien 2 in 3. Score at end of first half, Glenville 18, Farmington 10. Referee: Brownie Hamilton. Scorers: Hamill and Fleming.

THE WORLD DO SHRINK.
CINCINNATI.—The world may be growing better. J. C. Andrews, furniture manufacturer, doesn't know. It is, however, growing shorter. "It is," says he, "we used to have lots of calls for beds of extra length for tall people," says he, "we haven't had an order for a year now."

The annual importation of walnuts during the past 10 years was more than 30,000,000 pounds.

Splendid Service.
A large crowd of young people attended the "Win My Chum" service at the Diamond street church last evening. A splendid address was delivered by Rev. Wallace B. Fleming of the Wesleyan college at Buchanan. The musical numbers were very much enjoyed by the large audience. The following young people's unions were in attendance: Epworth Leagues of First M. E. church and Highland avenue church; Christian Endeavor of the First M. P. church, and B. Y. P. U. of the Palatine Baptist church. At the close of the service a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served. The week's services have been very interesting and instructive. Dr. A. Moore, of Morgantown, will preach at 7:30 Sunday evening and

ASTHMA WOULDN'T LET HIM LIE DOWN

Hasn't had a sign of trouble now for over 9 months.

"A year ago I had asthma so bad my friends thought I would never get over it. I had doctors for a long time without results. I had not been in bed for 3 weeks, could not even sit up straight in a chair. Then I heard of Milks Emulsion and started using it. It was only two days later that I could go to bed and sleep soundly. After taking eight bottles ($4 worth) I found myself completely cured. It is over 9 months now since I quit taking Milks Emulsion. I haven't had a symptom of asthma since." Geo. W. Baker, R. F. D. 1, Latrobe, Pa.

Why shouldn't Milks Emulsion help you? It has worked wonders for others. It costs nothing to try. Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere. Guaranteed by W. R. Crane Drug Co.

RUFF STUFF
See they say there is a widespread spirit of unrest among the farmers of the nation.
But there is as yet no suggestion that the farmers are blaming their rouch on the lack of booze.
Many a city dweller would trade his lot for that of Reuben if the barrel of hard cider Reuben has been included in the deal.
That barrel and the certainty that it could be renewed from year to year helped many a farmer to march up to the polls and resolutely vote dry every time he got a chance.
"Fire destroys comic section."—Headline.
Evidently there are ways of taking the features out of newspapers other than the one adopted by Mr. Munsey.
Mrs. Yost is dead sure there will be a special session to act on suffrage before the date of the primaries.
Governor Jawn says there will be no special session unless the gas transportation tax is thrown out by the courts.
Question arises—
Is Mrs. Yost a bold guesser, or is there something worse than a leak wrong with the Circuit court of Kanawha county?

Italian scientists say the waves recently caught by wireless plants throughout the world may have been caused by people on other planets trying to communicate with us.

But another Italian scientist, an astronomer, thinks such an idea is impious, or something like that.

But what think Hi Johnson and Borah think of it?

The English language probably falls them entirely upon such a point.
